'An incomparable book, by far the best written on any aspect of the second German war: a book sound in its scholarship, brilliant in its presentation, a delight for historians and laymen alike. No words of praise are too strong.'

A. J. P. TAYLOR in the NEW STATESMAN

'Absolutely enthralling . . . It is all there, the fantastic comings and goings, Hitler's last-minute marriage to Eva Braun and the supposed suicide and ritual burning of the corpse.'

DAILY WORKER

'Mr. Trevor-Roper is not only an historian, but an intensely readable one, qualities that do not always march together. Never was a document more devastating and pointed than this epitaph on a set of mountebanks who all but accomplished their fearful desires.'

THE SPHERE

'No major historical event that I know of has ever been investigated under like circumstances and it seems unlikely that Mr. Trevor-Roper's findings will ever be upset.'
