EXPERIENCE AND NATURE

JOHN DEWEY

These papers represent the Paul Carus Lectures, which were established as a memorial to Dr. Paul Carus. The purpose of the lectures is to further interest and original work in philosophy. The chief obstacle to a more effective criticism of current values lies in the traditional separation of nature and experience, which it is the purpose of this volume to replace by the idea of continuity.

INDUSTRIAL PSYCHOLOGY

THOMAS W. HARRELL

A basic text addressed to the undergraduate student, this revised edition retains those features of over-all organisation and clarity of exposition for which the first edition was admired by teacher and student alike. Many illustrative examples and brief chapter summaries supply helpful review material and a list of current references offers suggestions for further reading.
