

a Pelican Book

3/6

Mathematical Puzzles and Diversions

Martin Gardner

Martin Gardner

Mathematical Puzzles and Diversions

Penguin Books

Contents

Introduction	9
1 Hexaflexagons	13
2 Magic with a Matrix	24
3 Nine Problems (Answers on page 34)	30
4 Ticktacktoe, or Noughts and Crosses	42
5 Probability Paradoxes	50
6 The Icosian Game and the Tower of Hanoi	56
7 Curious Topological Models	62
8 The Game of Hex (Answers on page 77)	70
9 Sam Loyd: America's Greatest Puzzlist (Answers on page 84)	78
10 Mathematical Card Tricks	87
11 Memorizing Numbers	92
12 Nine More Problems (Answers on page 103)	99
13 Polyominoes	112
14 Fallacies	126
15 Nim and Tac Tix (Answers on page 141)	133
16 Left or Right?	142
References for Further Reading	151

published by Penguin Books

Whether you are intrigued, embarrassed, or just plain scared by the complexities of mathematics, this is a book which will both delight and infuriate you. Culled from the pages of Scientific American, these puzzles, problems, and paradoxes, with names like Hexaflexagons, Polyominoes, and the Icosian Game, are the work of a master and the best of their kind. But a word of warning: This beguiling collection has been specially designed to seduce you for hours, days, weeks, from the duller business of practical life. Be on your guard!

'This book is a "must" for the school and college library and will worthily find a place on the shelves of mathematical teachers' - Technical Education

Cover design by Frederick Price

For copyright reasons this edition is not for sale in the U.S.A. or Canada

