'Tremendously important . . .
It bubbles with provocative ideas'

VANCE PACKARD

As an avalanche of change sweeps through the Western world so new discoveries, new technologies and new social arrangements force a faster and faster pace in daily life.

Alvin Toffler, brilliantly disturbing and moving, analyses the new, dangerous society now evolving, and shows how to come to terms with a future whose world could include:

Babies born without pregnancy

Cities under the sea

Man-machine sexual relationships

Sunshine at will

Homosexual family units

Anti-social leisure cults

Accelerated education through drugs

Animal servants

Group marriage

'One of the most far-reaching and important works of our day'

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

'Remarkable . . . If this book is neglected we shall all be very foolish'
